YOUNG DIRECTOR & PHOTOGRAPHER

Christian Brecheis' sport and lifestyle photography has a natural quality. He approaches the genre with a true understanding of the body and the connection of his subjects with nature. His photographs communicate joy, passion, and a natural lightness, and in them, the boundary between sport and lifestyle becomes fluid.

The interest in photography grew from his passion for snowboarding. Years of traveling with athletes, documenting their lifestyle and sport, lead to a natural approach to photograph people and their passions. He thrives in leading large scale productions, as much as he appreciates the challenge in solo documentary adventures.

Photography has been like a ticket to see special places, unique travels and meeting interesting people. All these impressions and experiences continue to push Christian in doing what he loves.
